Same love
Everyone is different

We are all born exactly how we were meant.
We may be different,

but we are still equal.
And when we find someone who loves how we were meant to be...

we fall in love.
But imagine if you were shunned for being yourself,
for being how you were born.
You were treated unequally,
made to follow different rules.
But how are you unequal? You love, they love, you're a person so are they.

We cannot control who we love,

or how we were born.
But we can control our actions and words.
Don't discriminate against those who were born that way, we don't judge you for being you.
